

La Rosière is part of the Espace San Bernardo ski area in France, and has access to 160km of pistes. You can venture over the border to Italy and enjoy the slopes of La Thuile too. The skiing is superb in both resorts with vast, diverse terrain. The village itself still has a traditional alpine feel. There's plenty of bars and restaurants to choose from, all of which have a beautiful backdrop of the Isère Valley.

Top Runs

- There are nursery slopes just above the village for beginners. Below Roc Noir, there are plenty of blue runs to progress on.
- The red Fontaine Froide piste from the summit of the Roc Noir is a great ski. It'll take you to Ecludets after an exciting 1,140m descent.
- If you want a seriously steep black run, Etagne on the Mont Valaisan sector is a great challenge. Something to note: the slope has a 74% gradient.
- Another black run to try is la François Berthod. The piste is used for both the Alpine and Telemark World Cup.
