

Myrkdalen is the largest ski resort in western Norway and great for family skiing. Boasting one of the best snow records in Europe, the ski resort has an average snowfall of five metres. This can create some great off-piste conditions with plenty of powder for those daring enough. The wide open and quiet pistes are particularly suited to children and beginners, with many facilities and activities catered towards families. A modern ski resort, Myrkdalen has more than 55km of pistes, so there's something for every ability.
